Spreading the news, RESPONSIBLY

The Kimberley Echo is committed to keeping readers safe and informed during the corona virus pandemic. Please heed all government warnings and practise proper hygiene, social distancing and self-isolation where necessary.

We want our customers to know that:

1. There has never been a reported incident of COVID-19 being transmitted via newsprint.
2. The early scientific research on virus transmission to inanimate surfaces suggests porous surfaces carry the lowest potency for the shortest period of time.
3. Newspapers are even more sterile because of the ink and the printing process they go through.
4. Publishers are protecting customers through health and safety precautions at printing plants, distribution centres, newsstands, and during delivery.
